MOTION TO CONVERT REMAINING
PROBATION TO ADMINISTRATIVE PROBATION

Comes now, the defendant, by and through his undersigned attorney, and moves this honorable court for an order, converting the remaining fifteen years of his probation to administrative probation, and as grounds therefor would show:

1. The only remaining outstanding condition of probation is restitution.
2. The defendant has paid court ordered restitution each and every month since he was placed on probation fifteen years ago.
3. At the last hearing, the court found that the only reason that the defendant is on probation is to oversee collection of payments.
4. The defendant has been on probation for fifteen years with no problems or violations.
5. The defendant has complied with every court order.
6. The defendant already has permission to work out of the county with extended rights to stay overnight for business purposes.
7. Converting the defendant's remaining probation to administrative probation would enable the defendant to obtain the highest paying job for restitution purposes.
8. The crimes are financial in nature, not violent crimes or drug related.
