RE: Gillespie v. Barker, Rodems & Cook, PA, case no.: 05-CA-7205

Dear Mr. Bauer:

Enclosed is a signed settlement agreement pursuant to your representation in the above captioned matter. It is a modification of the contract you proposed. Essentially it provides for the return of $19,212.44 paid you in return for my release of you. You are free to accept the agreement or not, or take some other action, or take no action.

Please be advised that I no longer oppose your motion to withdrawal, served October 13, 2008. I am concerned that your failure to notify me, and the court reporter, that you canceled the hearing set for March 19, 2009, shows your approach to this matter has not changed. The court reporting company charged me $80.00 because you failed to notify the reporter that you canceled the hearing. And I incurred time and expense driving to Tampa for the hearing.

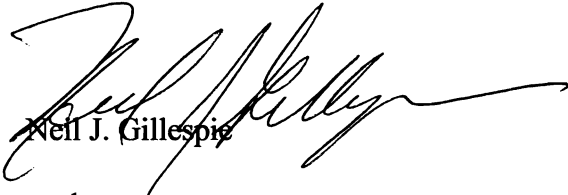

Enclosed is a signed contingent fee contract should you decide to continue your representation. It is a modification of the contract you proposed, with changes suggested by counsel and some of my own. You are free to accept the contract or not, or take some other action, or take no action.

Kindly find enclosed copies the following:

1. Proposed notice to the court that I no longer object to your withdrawal; and
2. An assignment of unliquidated lawsuit proceeds

The notice to the court is needed, I believe, if you decide not to continue representation. I planned to contact you sooner, but my computer failed and it has taken some time to get going again. Please reply by May 26, 2009. Otherwise I will proceed on that basis. I do not want the passage of time or inaction to negatively affect my case.

Sincerely,

Neil J. Gillespie
